St. Louis - 314.516.2671

Edward Radetic focuses his practice on premises liability, professional liability, transportation law, and insurance defense. He has experience providing consultation and litigation services on behalf of several national insurance carriers, a large national retail company and a quasi-governmental regional transportation entity in a variety of substantive areas.

Edward handles all stages of litigation and has experience reviewing, analyzing, and drafting initial responsive pleadings, third-party pleadings, and discovery requests. He has experience in preparing, drafting, and arguing discovery-related motions and dispositive motions, with a notable accomplishment that involves in-depth research, meticulous preparation, and persuasive argumentation leading to the issuance of a summary judgment in a liability matter.

In the realm of depositions, Edward is actively involved in both conducting and defending proceedings that involve parties, treating experts and retained experts in diverse substantive areas.
