Chicago - 312.658.6594

Rebekah is an experienced attorney and legal project manager who focuses her practice on eDiscovery, litigation support, and contract review. With more than a decade of experience across the EDRM lifecycle, she advises clients on defensible, efficient, and technology-driven discovery strategies in complex litigation and regulatory matters.

Over the course of her 20-year legal career, Rebekah has held key roles at global law firms and legal service providers. She has led cross-functional teams through all phases of discovery, including collection, document review, privilege analysis, metadata management, and production as well as in contract review and outreach for legal transactions and regulatory requirements. Her work is grounded in a deep understanding of legal technology, and she holds certifications in both Six Sigma and project management.

Rebekah is known for her ability to translate complex legal and technical issues into actionable workflows. She has authored best practices and methodologies for process and technology solutions adopted across organizations and has trained attorneys, technologists, and analysts in the U.S. and internationally.
