St. Louis - 314.345.5448

With experience in highly regulated areas of the medical industry, Sanja Ord assists health care providers in a variety of transactions and disputes. She advises hospitals, health systems and other providers and organizations on contracts, fraud and abuse laws, medical staff bylaws and other policies and health care transactions.

Sanja regularly assists physicians (residents and attendings) with employment contract review and has experience in contract processes and review for a large health system. She regularly represents physicians and other health care providers with Medicare audits, repayment demands, and appeals throughout the administrative hearing process, including at the administrative law judge level.

Sanja has successfully represented physicians and other health care providers with license issues in front of their respective licensing boards. She also assists health care systems with guardianship matters, ECTs and other minor disputes.

Before attending law school, Sanja worked as a certified nuclear medicine technologist, a heavily regulated field. Her role preparing and administering radiopharmaceuticals included ensuring compliance with Nuclear Regulatory Commission guidelines, giving her a strong understanding of regulatory issues facing the health care industry.
